1. BLOWER MOTORS ARE WARRANTED FOR A PERIOD OF SIX MONTHS ONLY.

2. ANY WARRANTIES IMPLIED BY LAW INCLUDING WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY AND FITNESS ARE LIMITED IN DURATION TO THE ONE-YEAR PERIOD (SIX-MONTH PERIOD IN RESPECT TO BLOWER MOTORS) IMMEDIATELY FOLLOWING THE DATE THE FURNACE IS DELIVERED TO THE ORIGINAL PURCHASER, ANY DEFECT OR MALFUNCTION WHICH WOULD AMOUNT TO A BREACH OF ANY SUCH IMPLIED WARRANTY MUST BE REPORTED TO HYDRO FLAME WITHIN SAID ONE-YEAR PERIOD (SIX MONTHS IN CASE OF BLOWER MOTORS).

4. COMPONENTS MANUFACTURED BY ANY SUPPLIER OTHER THAN HYDRO FLAME CORPORATION SHALL BEAR ONLY THAT WARRANTY MADE BY THE MANUFACTURER OR SUPPLIER OF THAT PRODUCT.

CAUTION — READ THIS PRIOR TO FIRING YOUR FURNACE!

Hydro Flame Furnaces are precision built. Please treat them accordingly. All air passages are fixed and cannot be adjusted. Do not make any physical change in the furnace construction.

Before furnace is put into operation, there are certain steps that must be followed to insure proper operation, efficiency, long life and safety.

CAUTION: AN OVERFILLED GAS BOTTLE CAN BE DANGEROUS

Liquid gas from an overfilled bottle can be forced through the gas bottle pressure regulator. Should this happen the liquid will immediately expand to a vapor creating a high pressure gas. This high pressure gas could destroy the gas seal in the gas control valve, causing a large amount of gas to escape into your living area. This could, of course, result in a fire or an explosion. To prevent this, please read and carefully adhere to the following.

All L.P.G. gases are put in bottles or cylinders under high pressure as a liquid. The top 10% of the interior area of the cylinder must be reserved for a gas vapor area. Each cylinder has a small round valve located either beside the main valve or on the side of that valve. This is called a 10% valve.

When the cylinder is being filled, this valve should be open. It can be opened by hand. DO NOT use pliers or wrenches to open or close this valve. When the cylinder is being filled, with the 10% valve open, you will hear high velocity gas escaping. When you see a white, frosty vapor coming out, the cylinder is overfilled. Shut main gas valve. Allow gas to discharge from 10% valve until it becomes invisible. Close the valve and the bottle is properly filled.

LACK OF ALCOHOL IN GAS BOTTLE

When a gas bottle is manufactured, the manufacturer is required by law to subject it to a Pressure Test. To do this, the bottle is usually filled with water and it is seldom that all of this water is removed. The following often happens when the furnace is in operation: The gas in a propane cylinder is liquid; as it is drawn off, it becomes a vapor as does a small amount of the water. Then the gas vapor and water vapor proceed to the small orifice in the pressure regulator at 100 lbs. P.S.I. pressure or more. Passing through this orifice, the gas pressure is dropped to approximately eleven inches of water column, or six ounces pressure.

This extreme expansion is the basic principle of refrigeration. Propane is an excellent refrigerant; therefore, the interior of the regulator will be cooled below freezing temperature and the water vapor will freeze and form tiny ice crystals around the outlet of the small gas orifice inside the gas pressure regulator. This will cut down on the amount of gas available to the main burner and rob the amount of gas available to the much smaller pilot orifice. The result is a pilot flame too small to properly heat the 100% safe thermocouple, which in turn will shut off all of the gas to the furnace, which is its' proper function. While this is not hazardous, still it can certainly become an exasperating nuisance.

To keep this from happening, simply add ½ cup or more of alcohol to each gas bottle. This is done when the bottle is empty by opening main gas valve on the bottle and pouring it in. This need be done only one time to each bottle.

FUEL LINE CHECKS

We recommend frequent checks on all lines, fittings and pressure regulators. Look for sharp bends or breaks in the tubing. Check for leaks (use a soap and water solution; do not use matches). Have pressure checked at each appliance to make certain that each has 11" to 12" W.C. or 6 to 6½ ounces of pressure for proper operation on L.P.G. gas.

CAUTION: Never subject the furnace to more than 8 ounces air or gas pressure when testing fuel lines. More than this can blow the seal in the gas valve and cause a gas leak.

FUEL LINE STOPPAGE

When a camper or trailer is not in use and fuel lines are disconnected, always plug or protect them from foreign material. Mud Daubers love to plug them. Many times the lines are partially plugged, but not completely blocked off, so appliances may run, but at a reduced rate.

SMALL TUBING

Use 3/8" or larger tubing when installing Hydro Flame Furnaces. Smaller tubing can drop gas pressure and heat output.

FURNACE GOING OUT?

Pilot door must be closed tightly during operation. (If so equipped).

When a Hydro Flame Furnace is in operation, the firebox is usually under a low pressure condition; therefore, if the pilot door is even slightly opened or cracked, air will be pulled into the firebox. This stream of air will force the pilot flame away from the thermocouple in toward center, which will cool the thermocouple and drop the furnace controls out on safety, shutting off all of the gas supply. Pilot door should be closed tightly after pilot is lit and before main burner is turned on.

PILOT OUTAGE

If the pilot flame will not stay lit when you release pilot knob, check ignition flame size. The flame should envelop the top 3/8" to 1/2" of thermocouple and should be approximately 1½" total length, turn pilot gas adjustment screw located on gas valve out, or counter clockwise, until a normal size flame is obtained. (See illustration at top of page 7.)

3/8 TO 1/2 INCH

CAUTION:

Never bend or try to force thermocouple into pilot flame.

If you have proper gas pressure and pilot flame is still not at normal size, remove orifice from pilot, clean by blowing out frontwards and backwards with high pressure air and replace.

HEAT OUTPUT UNSATISFACTORY

First, be sure the gas bottle is not overfilled and that you have alcohol in gas bottle and full gas pressure (12") to furnace. Locate sensing bulb further from heat.

If problem still persists, direct your correspondence to the nearest authorized service center or
